FUELMiser Holds A Day in the Pits

This past July, Pocono International Speedway (Pennsylvania) swarmed with racing fans attending the exciting NASCAR/ARCA Pocono 500 Racing weekend. After the opening ceremonies and the national anthem, 40 powerful stockcar engines roared to life, drowning out the excited screams and cheers of over 60,000 fans. A Day in the Pits with the FUELMiser race team is anything but quiet!

The Day in the Pits is offered at auctions as part of the FUELMiser fundraising program. To date, the FUELMiser race car and/or race team has participated in fundraising events to benefit limousine industry associations, as well as some prominent and very worthy charitable organizations such as Save the Children and the Make-A-Wish Foundation. The FUELMiser guests for this year's Day in the Pits were Jeff Shanker and Mike Peterson of A-1 Limousine, Jim Mosley and his son Mark of James Limousine Service, and limousine industry lobbyist Barry Lefkowitz.

"Our guests live an experience that most people would never have a chance at otherwise," said FUELMiser president Steve Sacs. The day starts early with an 8:30 a.m. check-in at the ARCA credentials office where guests get their official pit pass and includes FUELMiser race shirts, hats, award plaques, a garage tour, meeting other race teams, personal introductions to many drivers, and, of course, the exciting pit experience during the race.
